

Broadway Counseling COVID-19 updated changes

First, I hope you are all well. Know that through all of this I've been thinking of and praying for you.

Due to my concern for everyone's health and safety, recent changes in Lubbock, and CDC recommendations we will need to make a few changes to our coming meeting. For the next two weeks, at least, all sessions will need to be done through teletherapy.

I sincerely apologize for any inconvenience this may place on any of you. I would rather keep you safe than create more risks for you.

The therapy management system I use allows for easy and safe teletherapy. It is HIPAA compliant and completely confidential. It's very easy to set up and can be operated on your end if you have a smartphone or a computer with webcam capabilities. You will also need a reliable Internet connection.

If you have any questions or concerns please let me know and we can talk about those. It is also possible to postpone our meetings for the next two weeks until we know more.

As a positive, I will have a little more flexibility for scheduling over the next couple of weeks because we will be meeting online. I know that the unprecedented nature of our current times can be anxiety provoking and the changes that we are moving into can feel unnatural or different. I want to be there as best that I can and so if there are ways that I can help let me know.
